

Dr. Steve Buchholz

Consultant

Dr. Steve Buchholz is the President and founder of Emergence whose purpose is to “help discover the potential in people.” This potential is made explicit through learning interventions focused on leadership capacity, high performing leadership teams and ways to ignite the human spirit.

Dr. Buchholz is a recognized leader in the field of change management. Along with Harry Woodward, Steve authored the business best seller Aftershock: Helping People Through Corporate Change. Steve has also written The Positive Manager, and Creating High Performance Teams.

Formerly, Steve was Vice President of Wilson Learning Corporation responsible for researching business trends and translating the findings into learning interventions for corporations. He was a founding partner of The Inventure Group, focused on leadership and life coaching. He holds a doctorate in Interpersonal Communications from the University of Nebraska.

Steve works with a variety of companies focusing on leadership capacity, high performance teaming, mobilizing the energy of the organization (change management), talent retention, and developing strategic alignment.

A special part of his work has become one-on-one coaching, helping individuals re-find their smile, discover their potential, and move to mastery.

Born and raised in northern Minnesota, Steve finds real joy in a series of outdoor venues such as hiking, climbing, fishing, and wilderness camping.
